Unleash Your Inner Architect – Add a Room Almost Anywhere with Johnson Hardware

Any architect will tell you that space comes at a premium these days. While you dream about building an addition to your home so that you can have the office you always wanted, a separate laundry area, or a new play space for the kids, additions are very costly and not practical, workable solutions for everyone. But now, with the help of Johnson Hardware, you can unleash your inner architect and find the dream space you want in an unlikely place – the closet nearest you.

While you won't need a building permit, you will need Johnson's Full Access Folding Door Hardware, a versatile and affordable solution to your space needs. A breeze to install, the hardware allows you to fold closet doors back so that they're entirely clear of the entranceway to your "new addition." Once your inner architect is out of the closet, so to speak, you're free to get truly creative in designing your expanded space to fit your personal needs.

Home organization experts suggest that you store out-of-season clothes under your bed in special rolling drawers. Use clothes organizers in your other closets and then free up the remaining closets to create the room space you've needed.

The room created here shows how easy it is to make closet space work more efficiently. With a few shelves or cabinets and Johnson Full Access Folding Door Hardware, you're in business.

You'll also find this Full Access Folding Door Hardware Kit a practical solution for converting closets into laundry areas, wet bars, toy rooms or even hideaway workbenches. It can also be used on utility rooms, pantries, wardrobes, anywhere you need more room at the doorway.

Installation's a snap, too. The patented jamb hinges require no mortising. They simply attach with screws as do the control arm and panel-connecting hinges.

A screwdriver and tape measure are the only tools you'll need for installation. An experienced handyman can mount the hardware and install the doors in about 10 minutes.

Johnson's Full Access Folding Door Hardware Kit comes with a lifetime guarantee. Each kit contains control arm assembly, hinges and all the necessary mounting hardware. The kit can also be used with standard mortise-type butt hinges to match other interior doors.
